Policewoman's Pose As Drug Addict Nets Six Arrests

—SNS Photo

For six months Dorothy Lea of Toronto posed as a drug addict and as a result of her actions helped to break one of Toronto's most vicious drug-peddling rings. An undercover policewoman, whose only protection was a knowledge of judo, Dorothy mingled in the underworld of dope addicts and "snow" passers, working most of the time without police protection. End of assignment saw police, working with the RCMP narcotic squad, arrest six persons on a total of 16 charges and seize 100 capsules of heroin.
